

Refiners Meeting

June 2, 2020

Sam B. – There are a few things that I want to go over with updates on the COVID-19 virus and the BLM and then we will get updates from the people out in the field. The BLM is still injecting BLM product into high purity wells. We are still following that protocol. We are still accepting gas from refineries. Thank you for working with the BLM to maintain composition and pressure on the BLM pipeline, I appreciate you working with my folks to make that happen. We are monitoring the changing plans and return to office policy. We are starting to see in some places restaurants and things like that opening. Here in Texas we are very cautiously watching what is going on. Again, we are hearing policy coming down from the BLM we are still status quo this week. We are also hearing more and more of change that is coming so possibly we will see some relaxing of conditions next week. Our discussions on outage dates are still potentially doing something in July but it could potentially be pushed out. Our current date is mid-July. As the conditions change or as we can bring contractors on site, it may be a little bit further out, but we will keep everyone updated as we know more and monitor the situation. Those are the new highlights, with what we see coming some of the potential changes that we see are a self-check for all our employees. If folks are sick or have a fever they are not allowed to come into the office, we do not have that policy yet, but we may see something next week. I think now we will go out to the field.

Rodney C. – Everything on the pipeline is good. We are doing meter checks and sample bottle collections this month. There are some scheduled for tomorrow. We are going to go with the same schedule we had before this all started.

Sam B. – Mark Welch anything from the Engineering group?

Martin M. – I do not believe so; Mark is on the line trying to figure out some computer issues we are having.

Sam B. – I know there have been some issues with reporting, so I hope we are getting the reports out to all the storage holders.

Martin M. – We had a question this morning. They are updating software and we are frantically working on it.

Sam B. – So, for those who are not getting their usual data the BLM is aware of it and we are working on it. Is there anything else to share with our storage holders this morning?

NONE.

Are there any questions from the group?

NONE.

Sam B.-Hearing none we will continue to have these meetings and give updates as they are available. Thank you again, I know these are short calls, but I appreciate the participation.
