Recreation Fee Program Spending & Accomplishment Highlights 2021

Inter-Agency Agreement

Canyon Creek climbing area

Rock climbing is becoming a popular outdoor activity in the Ten Sleep Canyon and surrounding areas. We have seen a significant increase in public land use in these areas in the last few years. Because of this, the Bureau of Land Management Worland Field Office has decided to partner with the United States forest service to assist with financing a Rock Climbing Ranger. This Ranger will ensure a continued positive outdoor recreation experience for the public while ensuring public safety.

Recreation Fee Dollars

Recreation fee dollars are an investment in outdoor recreation. Current and future generations benefit as 100% of the funds collected are reinvested in the facilities and services that visitors enjoy, use, and value.

They support and enhance:

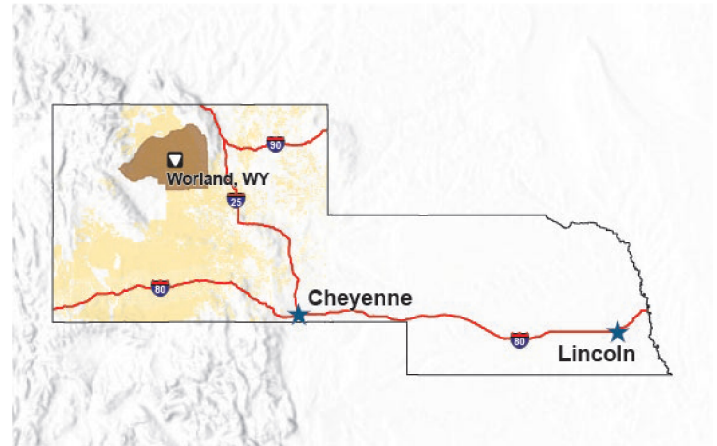

- Maintenance, repair, and facility enhancement related directly to visitor enjoyment, visitor access, and health and safety
- Interpretation, visitor information, visitor service, visitor needs assessments, and signs
- Habitat restoration directly related to wildlife- dependent recreation that is limited to hunting, fishing, wildlife observation, or photography
- Law enforcement related to public use and recreation
- Direct operating or capital costs associated with the recreation fee program

Other Accomplishments

No other expenditures from Fee Program.

Connecting with Communities

The Worland Field Office is committed to making the benefits of recreation more accessible to communities while supporting local social, economic, and environmental goals. Every year the office collaborates with the Washakie Museum and Cultural Center to provide local children with opportunities to learn about resource management through STEAM presentations, participation in history days, and other outreach events. In addition, the field office is collaborating with the National Park Service, local recreational groups, and the Wyoming Game and Fish to design the Bighorn River Blue Way Trail. This effort includes hosting public meetings to facilitate community engagement.
