

Help Nourish Nature

Volunteer today

Did you Know?

The BLM is responsible for managing 258 million acres of public land in the United States, and nearly 23 million acres are in Utah.

We can't do it alone. We need your help.

Who can help?

Almost anyone! We are seeking people of all ages, from youth groups to retired professionals. We have challenges and tasks for any age group, working on a range of projects which include: helping wildlife, improving recreation sites, gathering archaeological information and more. You can work alone or come with a group. Assignments vary in scope and duration and volunteers are not limited by age, only their willingness to serve. Whatever your interest, there's a volunteer opportunity to match. What a great chance for families to come together with a purpose.

What can I do to help?

Volunteer opportunities are diverse — a volunteer may be working with a wildlife biologist monitoring nesting habits of raptors. There may be opportunities to assist archaeologists discover and protect sites. Groups can assist in preserving and replanting stream vegetation. Campground and river host volunteers meet new people and help visitors enjoy the great outdoors. Scout troops can help install information signs along some of Utah's backways and byways. Small and large crews can help install and maintain fencing, build and maintain hiking and biking trails, construct and refurbish camp areas, and improve wildlife habitat. Utah is a state known for its diverse lands, the opportunities to serve are as diverse.

How can I sign up?

It's easy! Just visit the Web site:

www.volunteer.gov/gov

On this site you will be able to search for opportunities in your area, a specific type of volunteer work, or upcoming service events.

Visit the site to learn about different partners in our volunteer adventure and hear stories from other volunteers like you.

We extend an invitation for you to enter this one-stop portal with access to public sector volunteer positions that fit your skills and interests.

You may also call or visit your local BLM Office for more information. See the back of this brochure for locations and phone numbers.

Together, We can make a difference

If you are interested in helping preserve and nourish our public lands, volunteer. If you enjoy working with others, working outdoors and discovering new adventures, volunteer. If you have carpentry, geology, clerical, engineering, painting, architectural design, teaching, wildlife biology skills, or just have some free time and want to make a difference, volunteer. Volunteers and the BLM together make a difference.

A special thanks

The key to our success rests in volunteers like you. Thank you for caring for your public lands!
